

Risk for increased domestic violence during COVID19

One consequence of the spread of the Corona virus and the efforts to limit infections is that many people are spending more time at home. For people living with domestic violence, that means a greater risk for violence.

Domestic violence is often brought to our attention through neighbors who have been attentive, caring and acted.

We from the police and the municipality, encourage you, as fellow humans and neighbors, to contact us if you think that someone who lives nearby is being subjected to violence or is otherwise being hurt.
